Stanzel Museum Presents: An Exclusive Look into NASA's Launch Services Program

The Stanzel Museum is thrilled to announce a captivating event that will take attendees on a journey into the fascinating world of space exploration. On Saturday, July 6th 2024 three distinguished representatives from NASA's Launch Services Program will deliver an informative presentation about their current work and future missions.

Join us as we welcome Caley Burke, Flight Design (Trajectory) Analyst, Hibah Rahmani, Avionics & Flight Controls Engineer and Cesar Marin, Integration Engineer to Texas and the Stanzel Model Aircraft Museum.

This event promises to be an unparalleled opportunity for space enthusiasts, science aficionados, and curious minds of all ages to meet real life NASA scientists and learn more about the inner workings of NASA's Launch Services Program.

Attendees can expect to delve into the world of rocket science, exploring topics such as launch vehicle design, mission planning, and the crucial role played by the Launch Services Program in ensuring successful space missions. Through this engaging presentation and interactive discussion, visitors will gain a deeper understanding of the challenges, the triumphs, and future goals of NASA's Launch Services Program.

The Stanzel Museum, known for its commitment to preserving the rich history of aviation, is honored to host this exceptional event. Whether you are an aspiring astronaut, a space enthusiast, or simply curious about the mysteries of the universe, this event is not to be missed.

Join us on Saturday, July 6th, at 10:30 am or 1:00 pm at the Stanzel Museum for the unforgettable NASA Launch Services Program: Launching Across the Universe.

Admission to the event is free, however space is very limited!

Reserve your seat today by emailing your preferred presentation time, 10:30 am or 1:00 pm along with your full name and contact phone number to cynthia@stanzelmuseum.org
